

Disney's Pin Traders is the Perfect Place for 'Pin Pals'

Disney Springs Marketplace shop offers largest selection of collectible pins

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. — Taking the popular pin-trading pastime to an exciting level, Disney's Pin Traders provides a perfect place for enthusiasts of the fast-growing phenomenon to interact at Walt Disney World Resort.

The shop at Disney Springs Marketplace offers the largest selection of collectible pins and pin accessories, including everything from Disney character pins to pins commemorating Walt Disney World theme parks, attractions, resort hotels and much more.

Disney's Pin Traders has several tables for displaying and trading pins, including kid-sized tables for younger guests, plus two Internet stations where enthusiasts can visit Disney's official website Official Disney PinTrading.com, to catch up on the latest Disney pin releases and special events.

What is Disney Pin Trading?

While Disney has long offered collectible pins in its theme parks, a new tradition of official Disney Pin Trading began in October 1999 with the launch of the Millennium Celebration at Walt Disney World Resort. Today, it's an exciting, interactive experience that allows guests to trade pins and share stories with Disney cast members and other enthusiasts at Walt Disney World, Disneyland and Disneyland Paris resorts, and aboard the ships of Disney Cruise Line.

Many Disney cast members wear special lanyards decorated with colorful pins illustrating everything from beloved Disney characters to Disney theme park attractions. To trade pins, a guest can seek out a fellow pin collector or a cast member wearing a pin-trading lanyard and present a tradable pin in a one-for-one exchange. Each day, thousands of guests trade Disney pins with cast members and other collectors around the world.

A large selection of "core" pins typically priced between $6.50 and $8.50 is available at more than 80 Walt Disney World Resort merchandise locations in the four theme parks, the Disney Springs area and Disney resort hotels, including dozens of official pin trading stations where guests gather to display their collections and exchange pins.

Thousands of new Disney pins are released annually at Disney resorts around the world, including limited edition pins commemorating special occasions, holidays and Disney milestones. Special pin events take place throughout the year at Walt Disney World Resort, culminating in Disney's Pin Celebration, an annual gala held traditionally in September at Epcot that features a wide selection of limited edition pins and pin sets.

Guests can visit Official Disney Pin Trading.com for a complete overview of Disney Pin Trading, including news about pin releases, a calendar of upcoming events and a guide to pin trading etiquette.
